The 11th International Students Forum
Theme: Environment, Social and Governance (ESG)

Environmental issue has been one of the most focused areas of cooperation in the world. There has been an increasing number of projects, schemes, and initiatives at the international, regional and local levels to tackle environmental challenges confronting us. Business sectors and governmental agencies also work hand in hand to support projects and initiatives that tackle the challenges. The idea of ESG which stands for 'environment, social and governance' (ESG) has gained great interest from the public and private sectors. ESG stresses the importance of how to develop the economy and society while adhering to the principles, ideas, and practices that emphasize the environment and society at the same time.

This year, Chiang Mai University, as the leading university in Thailand, would like to encourage and stimulate great minds to think critically about ESG from different perspectives, theories, and approaches. Participants are expected to share their ideas, thoughts or opinions about ESG per se, or think about the significance and implications of ESG on business, politics, international relations, economic development, innovation, social enterprise, etc.

Purposes

- 1.) To strengthen student exchange among the participating universities
- 2.) To construct and develop an academic network among the participating universities
- 3.) To share knowledge regarding ESG
